INSIDE THIS BOOK

Contents

Think of this book as a map for your first three months. Read Part 1 before you join, then keep it on your desk and open the part that matches your week.

PART	WHAT IS INSIDE	PAGE
1. Before Day 1	Mindset, checklist and first-day prep	4
2. Days 1-30: Learn	Learn the people, the work and the culture	10
3. Days 31-60: Contribute	Own your work, take feedback, build trust	26
4. Days 61-90: Stand Out	Be visible, take initiative, plan your growth	40
5. Your Toolkit	Scripts, templates, worksheets and habits	52

How to use this book

- Read a page, do one thing. Every page ends in something you can try today.
- Use the toolkit. Scripts, email templates and worksheets are in Part 5 (pages 52-59).
- Keep a pen nearby. Worksheet pages are meant to be written on or copied into your notebook.

You do not need to be perfect. You need to be useful, reliable and easy to work with.

FIVE THINGS TO DO THIS WEEK

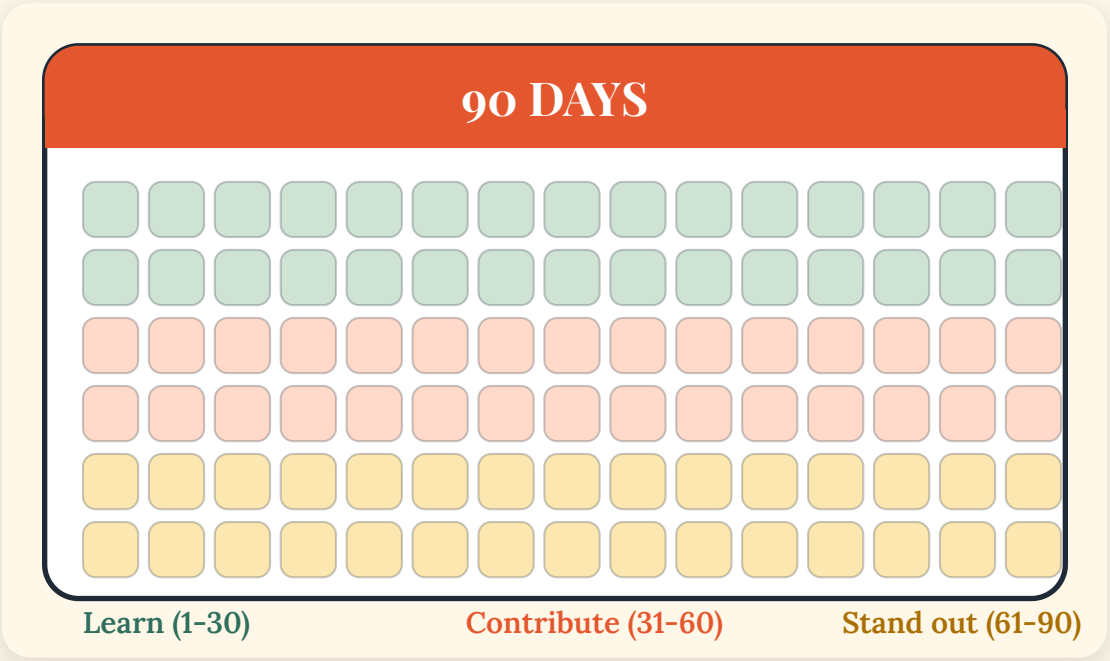

- [ ] Read Part 1 and finish the pre-joining checklist
- [ ] Write your 20-second introduction
- [ ] Open a new notebook labelled Daily log
- [ ] Choose one habit from page 58 to practise
- [ ] Screenshot the scripts on page 53

Welcome to Your First Job

The offer letter is signed. The excitement is real, and so is the nervous feeling in your stomach. Both are completely normal.

Your first job is not a bigger version of college. Nobody hands out a syllabus or marks you out of 100. Instead, people quietly notice three things: can I trust this person, can I work with them, and are they getting better every week?

The 90-day map: learn first, contribute next, then stand out

The first 90 days matter because first impressions are sticky. A manager who sees you being curious, reliable and kind in month one will give you more room, better work and more patience for the rest of your time there.

> Be the person people are happy to see on their team calendar.
> THE ONLY GOAL THAT MATTERS

HOW THE BOOK WORKS

Each part of this book follows the same rhythm: a short idea, a real-life example, a script you can say out loud, and a small action. Skip nothing in Part 1; dip in and out after that.

PART ONE

1 Before Day 1

Prepare quietly now so that Day 1 feels easy.

The days between your offer and your joining date are quiet but powerful. A little preparation now turns a stressful first week into a confident one.

IN THIS PART

PAGE	TOPIC
5	The mindset shift: student to teammate
6	What employers really notice
7	Your pre-joining checklist
8	First-day logistics: what to carry, wear and say
9	The night before

Joining day is just a day. You have already won the hard part: you were chosen.

> Preparation turns nerves into energy.
> PART 1 IN ONE LINE

BEFORE YOU JOIN

The Mindset Shift: Student to Teammate

College rewards individual marks. Work rewards shared results. This one change explains most first-job surprises.

IN COLLEGE	AT WORK
Marks decide success	Impact and trust decide success
You study alone	You depend on, and are depended on by, others
Deadlines come from a syllabus	Deadlines come from customers and teammates
Mistakes cost marks	Mistakes cost time, so you flag them early
Teachers tell you what to learn	You work out what to learn

Three mental upgrades

1. From answers to questions. Nobody expects you to know everything; they expect you to find out.
2. From finishing to delivering. Done means useful to someone else, not just completed.
3. From waiting to updating. Silence makes people nervous. A short update calms everyone.

M

Meet Meera FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

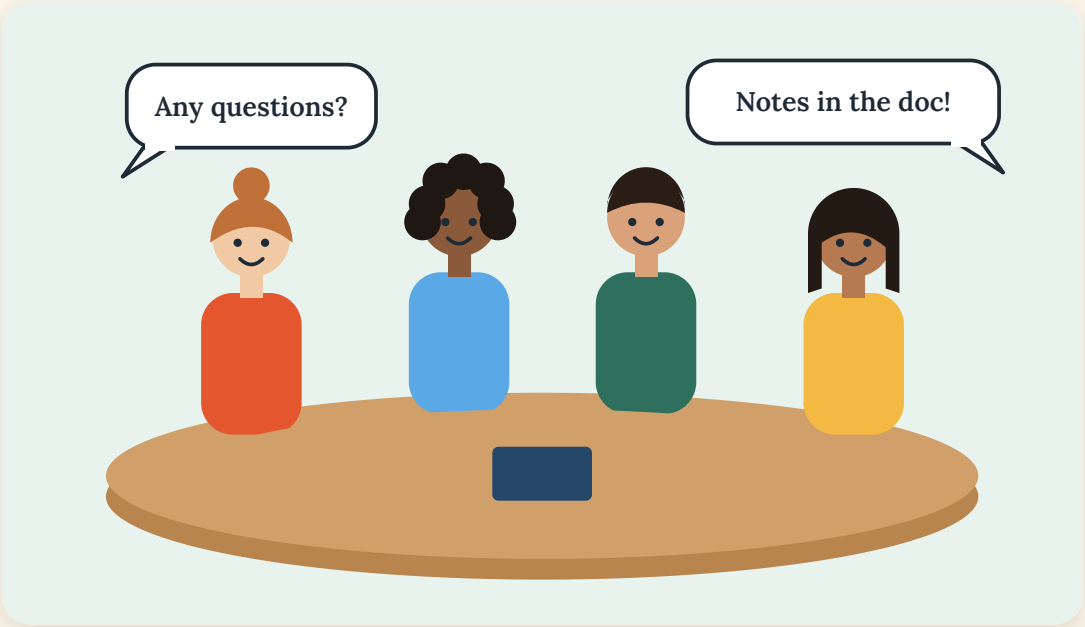

joined a software company as a trainee. For two days she silently struggled with a setup problem because she did not want to look weak. On day three her buddy fixed it in four minutes. Her lesson: struggling in silence is the expensive choice.

BEFORE YOU JOIN

What Employers Really Notice

Your degree opened the door. These habits decide how quickly you grow once you are inside.

- Reliability. You do what you said, when you said.
- Attitude. You listen, you are polite, you take feedback well.
- Curiosity. You ask smart questions and try things.
- Communication. People always know where you stand.
- Ownership. You care about the outcome, not just your task.
- Learning speed. You do not repeat the same mistake.

Most of work is conversations: meetings, chats, reviews

What managers quietly think

✓ MANAGERS LOVE

"She told me early that the task would slip, and gave a new date."

"He wrote down what I explained and never asked twice."

× MANAGERS WORRY ABOUT

"I only found out it was late on the due date."

"I have explained this three times."

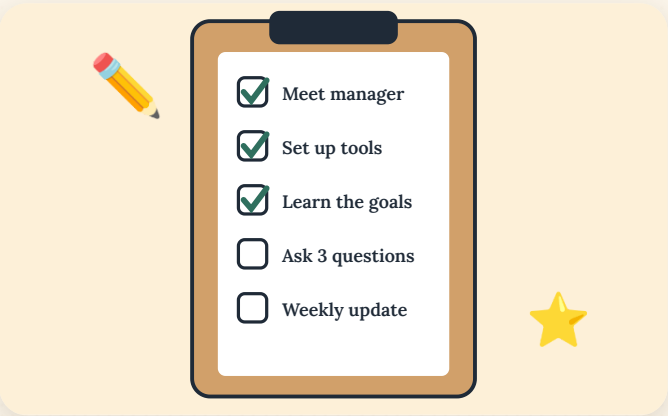

REMEMBER THIS

Skill gets you hired. Trust gets you good work. Trust is built from small, boring, repeated actions.

THE WEEK BEFORE

Your Pre-Joining Checklist

Use the last week before joining to remove every avoidable stress. Tick as you go.

DOCUMENTS AND ADMIN

- [ ] Offer letter, ID proofs and certificates, original and photocopies, in one folder
- [ ] Bank account details, passport photos, address proof as requested by HR
- [ ] Relieving or marks documents HR asked for: confirm the list by email
- [ ] Commute tried once at the same time of day you will travel

KNOW THE COMPANY

- [ ] Read the website, About page and latest news; note what the company sells and to whom
- [ ] Find your team and manager on LinkedIn; learn their names and roles
- [ ] Write three questions you want answered in the first week

BRUSH UP (LIGHTLY)

- [ ] Revisit the basics of the tools in your job description; do not try to learn everything
- [ ] Set up a fresh notebook or notes app just for work

PRO TIP

Email HR or your manager two or three days before joining: confirm time, place, who to ask for, and what to bring. It shows initiative and avoids Day 1 confusion.

DAY 1 PREP

First-Day Logistics: Carry, Wear, Say

Small practical things remove big nervousness. Sort them out the day before.

CARRY	WEAR	SAY
Original documents and a folder	Clean, comfortable, one level smarter than you think necessary	"Good morning, I'm ___. I'm joining the ___ team today."
Notebook and two pens	Check the dress code from HR; when unsure, smart casual	"Nice to meet you. What should I call you?"
Charged phone, charger, earphones	Comfortable shoes: you will walk and stand	"Could you point me to the right desk?"
Water bottle, small snack	Keep jewellery and strong perfume minimal	"Thank you, that helps a lot."

Smile, eye contact, your name, their name

ARRIVAL RULE OF THUMB

Reach 15 minutes early, not 45. Waiting in the lobby for too long makes you more nervous. If you are late for any reason, call or message your contact before the start time, with a calm one-line reason.

Phone on silent. Smile on.

EVE OF DAY 1

The Night Before

Tonight is not for studying. It is for making tomorrow easy.

1. Lay out clothes, ID, folder, notebook and bag.
2. Check route, travel time and how you will pay for it.
3. Set two alarms. Keep one far from your bed.
4. Write your intro in 20 seconds (below) and say it once aloud.
5. Eat a proper dinner and sleep early. Energy beats cramming.

Your 20-second introduction

Say it like this

Hi, I'm Rohan. I've just finished my B.Tech in IT and I'm joining the data team as a trainee. I enjoy building small projects, and I'm hoping to learn how real systems run. Nice to meet you!

Format: name + where you are from or what you studied + something you enjoy + what you hope to learn. Keep it warm, short and honest.

K

Meet Karthik FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

rehearsed his intro once in the mirror. When the manager asked everyone to introduce themselves, his voice stayed steady while two others rambled for two minutes. Practice made the nervous part automatic.

> Preparation does not remove nerves. It gives them somewhere to go.
> NIGHT-BEFORE WISDOM

PART TWO

Days 1-30: Learn

Listen, observe, ask, and make learning your full-time job.

Your job in month one is simple to say and hard to do: learn the people, the work and the way things are done here. Resist the urge to prove yourself. Prove you are easy to teach.

11-12	Day 1 hour by hour; meeting people
13-14	Your manager and onboarding questions
15-17	Notes, learning the business, asking well
18-20	Asking for help, quick wins, email and chat
21-23	Meetings, time, mistakes
24-25	Unwritten rules and your 30-day checkpoint

Goal for month one: be known as curious, punctual and kind.

DAY 1

Day 1, Hour by Hour

Here is what the first day usually looks like. Knowing the sequence removes the fear of the unknown.

TIME	WHAT HAPPENS	YOUR MOVE
Arrival	HR or reception greets you; forms, ID card	Smile, hand over documents neatly, say thank you
Morning	Laptop, email, access, orientation	Write down every login and who gave it to you
Mid-morning	Meet your manager and buddy	Ask: "What would make my first week a success?"
Lunch	Often with the team, sometimes alone	Say yes to every lunch invitation
Afternoon	Tools, policies, small reading tasks	Take notes; do not pretend to follow if you do not
End of day	Brief check-in or nothing at all	Send a one-line thank-you to your manager

Day 1 is the first step of a 90-day journey

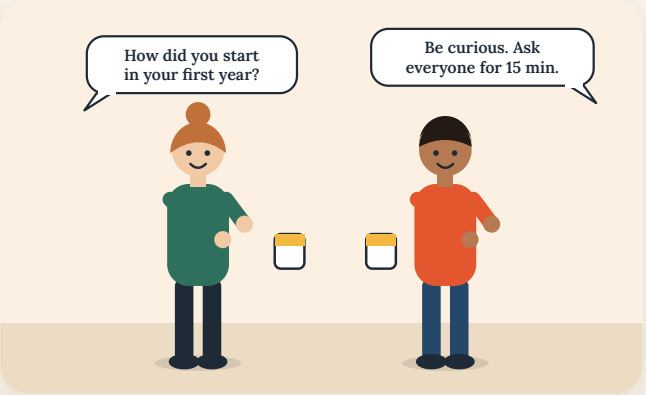

THE 30-SECOND THANK-YOU

At the end of Day 1 send your manager this: "Thank you for the warm welcome today. I've noted the priorities you shared and I'm looking forward to getting started." It takes 30 seconds and leaves a great impression.

DAYS 1-5

Meeting People and Remembering Names

In the first week you will meet more people than you can remember. Names are the most valuable thing to remember, and people notice when you do.

Be curious about people, not just tasks

A simple routine

1. Repeat the name the moment you hear it: "Nice to meet you, Priya."
2. Write it with one detail: Priya: testing team, loves filter coffee.
3. Use it twice in the first conversation.
4. Review your people list at the end of each day for the first week.

WHO TO MEET IN YOUR FIRST TWO WEEKS

- [ ] Your manager, buddy and direct teammates
- [ ] Anyone whose work feeds into yours or uses your output
- [ ] HR contact, IT support, admin or finance helpers
- [ ] One person from a different team, just to understand the business

✓ SAY THIS

"Could I take 15 minutes to learn what your team does?"

"What is one thing you wish you knew in your first month?"

× NOT THIS

"Can you teach me everything about your work?"

(says nothing and eats alone at a desk)

Names are a gift you give people.

DAYS 1-10

Understand Your Manager

Your manager's opinion shapes your first year more than anyone else's. Work out what they care about, and how they like to work.

FIND OUT	ASK LIKE THIS
Priorities	"What are the most important things for me to get right in the first 30 days?"
Communication	"Do you prefer updates by chat, email or in person? How often?"
Quality bar	"What does a good piece of work look like here?"
Autonomy	"When should I decide on my own and when should I check with you?"
Feedback	"How would you like to give me feedback, and how often?"

Manage up, politely

- Bring solutions, not just problems. "I'm stuck on X. I tried A and B. I think C might work. Can you confirm?"
- Do not surprise them. Bad news early is a gift; bad news late is a crisis.
- Learn their pressure points. If they have a big review on Friday, do not bring up non-urgent things on Thursday.

REMEMBER THIS

Your manager has one big question about you: "Can I stop worrying about this person's work?" Everything you do should help them answer yes.

DAYS 1-14

The 20 Onboarding Questions

Good questions are the fastest way to learn. Ask these across your first two weeks, and write the answers down.

1. Who are our customers, and what problem do we solve for them?
2. What does success look like for our team this quarter?
3. Who do I ask when I am stuck on tools? On process?
4. Which meetings should I attend, and which can I skip?
5. What are working hours really like?
6. How are tasks assigned and tracked?
7. What does "done" mean here?
8. Who reviews my work and how?
9. Where are documents, code or files stored?
10. What is the escalation path if something goes wrong?

1. How does our team talk to other teams?
2. What mistakes do new joiners usually make?
3. Which tools should I master first?
4. How is performance reviewed, and when?
5. What is the probation or confirmation process?
6. What learning budget or training exists?
7. Who are good people to learn from here?
8. What is the culture around leave and sick days?
9. What is something that makes the team proud?
10. What would you like me to do differently, one month from now?

Ask 2-3 per day. Do not fire all 20 at once!

PRO TIP

Keep a running list called "Ask later". Group questions and ask them together; it respects people's time.

DAYS 1-30

A Note-Taking System That Works

In the first month you will be told hundreds of things. Your memory will fail; a good system will not.

The three-notebook method

NOTEBOOK	WHAT GOES IN	HABIT
Daily log	Date, what you did, what you learned, what you are stuck on	5 minutes before leaving
Knowledge base	How-tos, steps, definitions, links, who-owns-what	Add every time you learn something new
People & questions	Names, roles, interests; questions to ask later	Review each morning

WRITE NOTES SO FUTURE-YOU CAN USE THEM

- Use full sentences for steps: "Open the portal, click Reports, choose last month."
- Add screenshots or links whenever the tool allows.
- Write the why, not just the what.
- End each meeting note with Actions: who, what, by when.

Daily log, example

Tue 12 Nov
Did: set up dev environment, read onboarding doc.
Learned: deployments happen only on Thursdays.
Stuck: access to the test database.
Tomorrow: ask IT about access; read module A code.

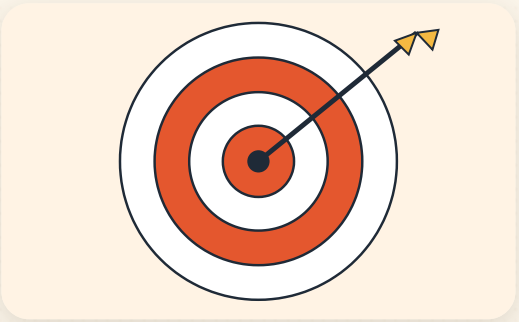

SECURITY FIRST

Never store passwords or confidential customer data in personal notes. Follow the company's security rules.

DAYS 5-30

Learn the Business, Not Just the Task

Freshers who rise fastest understand why their work matters. Learn how the company makes money and who benefits from your task.

Four questions to answer by day 30

1. Who is the customer? Describe them in two sentences.
2. What problem do we solve? In plain words, no jargon.
3. How do we earn or save money? Which products or services matter most?
4. Where does my work fit? Draw the chain from your task to the customer.

QUICK WAYS TO LEARN

- Read the last three internal updates or newsletters.
- Sit in on a customer call or demo if allowed.
- Ask a teammate: "Walk me through one real customer example."
- Use the product yourself like a customer for an hour.

R

Meet Rohan FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

a trainee analyst, spent his first Friday afternoon shadowing the support team. He learned why customers kept asking one question, and later built a tiny FAQ sheet that cut the repeat queries. His manager remembered that for months.

REMEMBER THIS

When you know who your work helps, you stop doing tasks and start solving problems.

ALL 90 DAYS

The Art of Asking Good Questions

Asking questions is not weakness. Asking lazy questions is. Here is the difference.

The 3-part question

1. Context: "I'm working on the monthly sales report."
2. What I tried: "I checked the template and the last two reports."
3. Where I'm stuck: "I don't know which database table holds returns. Could you point me to it?"

✓ SAY THIS

"I tried restarting the tool and checking the logs. The error says ___. Could you tell me what to check next?"

"Could you spare 10 minutes today or tomorrow?"

× NOT THIS

"It's not working. Can you fix it?"

"Are you free?" (then waits)

BEFORE YOU ASK: THE 15-MINUTE RULE

Try on your own for about 15 to 30 minutes (less if blocked or urgent, more if learning). Search internal docs, then ask. This balances learning with speed.

> PRO TIP
> Ask in writing when possible (chat or email). Written questions are easier to answer and create a searchable record for the next newcomer.

DAYS 1-30

How to Ask for Help (Without Feeling Small)

Everyone needs help. The people who ask early finish faster, and are trusted more.

SITUATION	WHAT TO SAY
You are blocked for an hour	"I've been stuck on this for an hour. I've tried A and B. Could you give me a hint?"
The task is unclear	"Just checking I understood: you want X by Friday, in Y format. Is that right?"
You will miss a deadline	"I want to flag early: X will take until Monday because Y. Is that okay or should I re-prioritise?"
You disagree politely	"I see it a bit differently. Could I share one concern?"
You do not know a term	"Could you explain what ___ means? I want to be sure I use it correctly."

Ask, listen, try, share what you learned

REMEMBER THIS

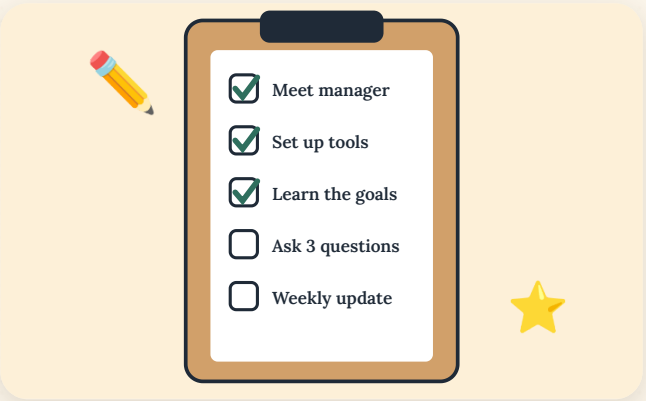

The most senior people ask questions all the time. Asking early is a senior behaviour, not a junior one.

Say thank you, and say what you did with the help.

DAYS 7-30

First Tasks and Quick Wins

Your first tasks are small on purpose. They test how you work: do you listen, finish, check and report back?

The 5-step task loop

1. Clarify: repeat the task back in your own words.
2. Plan: estimate time and share it. "I'll aim to finish by Wednesday noon."
3. Do: work in small pieces; save often.
4. Check: test or proofread. Read it as if you were the reviewer.
5. Report back: "Done. Here's the link. I also noticed X; shall I fix it?"

WHAT COUNTS AS A QUICK WIN?

- Cleaning up a messy shared document
- Writing the how-to you wish had existed
- Fixing a small, annoying issue nobody has time for
- Summarising a long thread so the team can move on

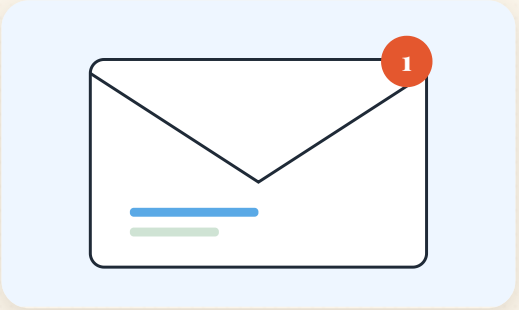

WATCH OUT

Do not take on a big, risky change in week two to impress people. Small and correct beats big and broken.

DAYS 1-30

Email and Chat Etiquette

At work, most of your voice is written. Clear, kind messages make you look professional before people even know you.

THE ANATOMY OF A GOOD MESSAGE

Subject: Review needed by Fri: Q3 report draft

Hi Neha,

I've finished the first draft of the Q3 report (link below). Could you review it by Friday 5 pm? I'm especially unsure about the revenue chart on page 3.

Thank you,
Rohan

DO	AVOID
Clear subject line with action and date	Subject: "Hi" or "Query"
One topic per message	Five unrelated questions in one email
Say what you need and by when	"Please advise" with no context
Re-read once before sending	Typing in ALL CAPS or too many exclamation marks
Reply within one working day, even to say "Will check by Thursday"	Leaving messages unanswered

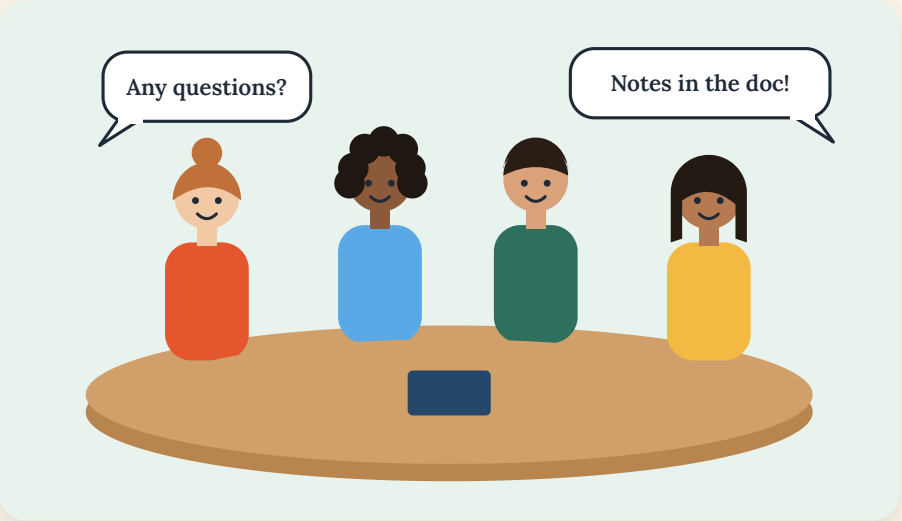

THE 10-MINUTE RULE

Before you hit send on anything emotional, wait ten minutes. If it is still necessary, send it calmly.

DAYS 1-30

Meetings: Show Up Prepared

Meetings are where reputations quietly form. You do not need to talk a lot. You need to be prepared, present and useful.

Before, during, after

BEFORE	DURING	AFTER
Read the agenda or ask for one	Arrive 2 minutes early, camera on if remote	Send a 3-line recap if you took notes
Write one question or update	Take notes: decisions and actions	Do your action items first
Test audio, link and charger	Speak once early so your voice is in the room	Ask if unsure about an action

✓ SAY THIS

"Could I check that I understood the next step?"

"I can take that action and send it by Thursday."

× NOT THIS

(checks phone through the whole meeting)

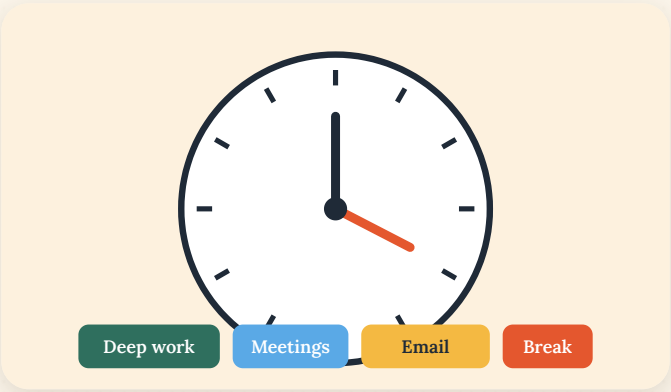

"Sorry, what was the topic again?" (every time)

Silence is fine. Distraction is not.

DAYS 10-30

Managing Your Time and Energy

New joiners often feel busy all day but unproductive. A small system fixes this.

The daily plan, in 10 minutes

1. List everything you must do today.
2. Pick 3 priorities: the tasks that matter most.
3. Block time on your calendar for those 3 (deep work).
4. Batch email and chat checks: three or four times a day, not every minute.
5. Close the day: note what is left and what you will do first tomorrow.

TYPE	EXAMPLES	WHEN
Important + urgent	Production issue, manager's deadline	Now
Important, not urgent	Learning, documentation, planning	Schedule it
Urgent, not important	Many pings and requests	Delegate or shorten
Neither	Scrolling, unneeded meetings	Drop

PRO TIP

Your best focus hours are precious. Protect one or two blocks a day for the hardest task, with notifications off.

ALL 90 DAYS

When You Make a Mistake

You will make mistakes. Everyone does. What defines you is the first five minutes after you notice.

STEP	WHAT IT SOUNDS LIKE
1. Tell early	"I've made an error in the report. I'll explain and fix it."
2. Explain briefly	"I used last month's data by mistake."
3. Contain the damage	"I've already told the three people who got the file."
4. Fix it	"The corrected version is attached."
5. Prevent it	"I've added a checklist step so it won't repeat."

Meet Meera FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

sent a file to the wrong client contact. She told her manager within minutes, called the contact to apologise and ask them to delete it, then added a double-check step. Her manager later said: "She handled it better than most people with ten years of experience."

WATCH OUT

Hiding a mistake turns a small problem into a trust problem. Trust is much harder to rebuild than data.

REMEMBER THIS

Own it. Fix it. Learn from it. Move on. Do not blame, hide or over-apologise.

DAYS 10-30

The Unwritten Rules of Office Culture

Every workplace has rules nobody writes down. You learn them by watching, and by asking one trusted person.

What to observe in the first month

OBSERVE	WHY IT MATTERS
When people arrive and leave	Sets the real expectation, whatever the policy says
How people dress and talk	Fit in first, personalise later
How decisions are made	Meetings? Chat? The manager alone?
How people give praise and criticism	Public or private; blunt or gentle
Lunch and break habits	Where relationships form

UNIVERSAL GOOD MANNERS

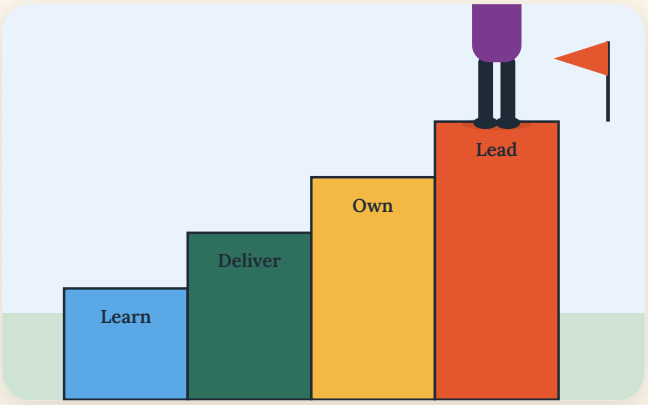

- [ ] Be on time and keep promises
- [ ] Say good morning and thank you
- [ ] Keep your desk and shared spaces tidy
- [ ] Do not gossip; stay neutral in any conflict
- [ ] Respect everyone: security, cleaners, interns and CEOs

Ask one friendly senior: "What's something nobody tells new joiners here?"

DAY 30

Your 30-Day Checkpoint

At day 30, pause and look back. You are not judging yourself. You are choosing what to improve next.

TICK WHAT IS TRUE

- [ ] I know my manager's top priorities for me
- [ ] I know the names and roles of my core team
- [ ] I can explain what the company does and who our customers are
- [ ] I have finished at least two tasks end to end
- [ ] I have asked questions and kept notes
- [ ] I have sent at least one proactive update

ONE THING I LEARNED THIS MONTH

ONE THING I WILL IMPROVE NEXT MONTH

YOUR NEXT MOVE

Book a 20-minute chat with your manager: "Could I get your feedback on my first month and what to focus on next?" This single meeting is the best investment of your first 30 days.

PART THREE

Days 31-60: Contribute

Deliver reliably, communicate early and build trust one task at a time.

By now you know the people and the basics. Month two is about delivering reliably and becoming someone the team can count on without checking.

27-29	Ownership, realistic promises, status updates
30-31	Feedback and 1:1s with your manager
32-34	Teamwork, remote etiquette, focus
35-36	Quality and pressure
37-38	Difficult people and relationships
39	Your 60-day checkpoint

Goal for month two: finish what you start and tell people how it is going.

DAYS 31-45

Take Ownership

Ownership means you treat the result as yours, even when it is a small task. It is the most visible difference between average and outstanding new joiners.

TASK-MINDED	OWNERSHIP-MINDED
"I did what was asked."	"I checked that it solved the real problem."
"It's not my area."	"I'll find who owns it and hand it over properly."
Waits to be told next steps	Proposes the next step
Hides risks	Flags risks early, with options
"It was the other team's mistake."	"Here is what I'll do to fix the situation."

Four ownership habits

1. Close the loop. When you finish, tell the person who asked.
2. Look one step ahead. "After this, they'll probably need X. Shall I prepare it?"
3. Leave things better. Fix the typo, update the doc, label the folder.
4. Follow through after launch. Check that your work actually works for users.

K

Meet Karthik FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

noticed that a weekly report he built had no instructions. He added a one-page guide. When he went on leave, his team ran it without a single message. Ownership means your work survives without you.

DAYS 31-45

Under-Promise, Over-Deliver

The fastest way to build trust is to say what you will do, then do it a little earlier or better. The fastest way to lose it is the opposite.

ASK	WEAK ANSWER	STRONG ANSWER
"Can you do this by Friday?"	"Sure!" (without thinking)	"I can have a draft by Thursday evening and a final by Friday noon. Does that work?"
"How long will it take?"	"Maybe an hour?"	"About 3 hours including testing. I'll update you at 3 pm."
"Is it done?"	"Almost."	"80% done. Remaining: charts and review. Ready tomorrow noon."

How to estimate honestly

1. Break the task into steps and estimate each.
2. Add buffer for questions, reviews and surprises (often 30-50%).
3. Give a range or a date with a checkpoint: "Draft by Wednesday."
4. If it will slip, say so before the deadline, with a new date.

✓ SAY THIS

"I'm aiming for Wednesday. I'll confirm by Tuesday noon if that changes."

× NOT THIS

"I'll try." (no date)

Better a realistic yes than a heroic yes that becomes a late no.

DAYS 31-60

Status Updates That Calm Everyone

People worry when they do not know where a task stands. A short, regular update removes that worry, and makes you look organised.

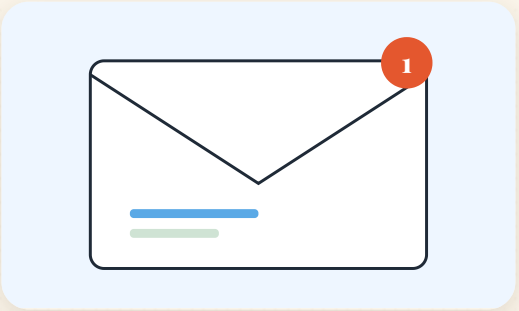

The 3-line update

Friday update: Sales dashboard

Done: Imported last month's data; built charts for revenue and returns.
Next: Add region filter and test with real numbers (Mon-Tue).
Blocked / need: Access to the returns table. Could you ask IT, or point me to the right person?

Format: Done, Next, Need. Three lines. No essays, no excuses.

HOW OFTEN	FOR WHOM	WHERE
Daily (2 lines)	Your manager, in the first month if they like it	Chat or stand-up
Weekly (3 lines)	Manager and key teammates	Email or team channel
Immediately	Anyone affected by a delay or risk	Direct message, then email

PRO TIP

When you send bad news, include a plan. "We will miss Friday. I can deliver the core on Friday and the extras on Monday. Which would you prefer?"

DAYS 31-60

Receiving Feedback Gracefully

Feedback is the cheapest training you will ever get. It rarely feels pleasant, but the people who learn to receive it grow fastest.

The five-step response

1. Listen fully; do not interrupt or defend.
2. Breathe and say thank you.
3. Clarify: "Could you show me an example of what better looks like?"
4. Write it down, including the action you will take.
5. Follow up later: "I applied your feedback on the last report. Does it look better?"

✓ SAY THIS

"Thank you. That's helpful. Could I try it again and show you?"

"Can you give me one example so I can see the difference?"

× NOT THIS

"But I did it the way you said."

"Nobody told me that."

(visible frustration or silence for hours)

REMEMBER THIS

Treat feedback as information about the work, not a verdict on your worth. A good manager who corrects you is investing in you.

DAYS 31-60

Making the Most of 1:1s With Your Manager

A weekly or fortnightly 1:1 is your private time with your manager. It is your meeting, not theirs. Prepare for it.

1:1 agenda: shared doc

1. Wins since last time (2 items)
2. Where I'm stuck / need a decision
3. Priorities for the next two weeks: am I focused on the right things?
4. Feedback: what should I do more or less of?
5. Learning: one skill I'd like to build

Good 1:1 questions

- "What is one thing I could do to be more useful to the team?"
- "What should I learn in the next 30 days?"
- "How do you see my work compared to what you expected?"
- "Is there a project I could shadow or help with?"

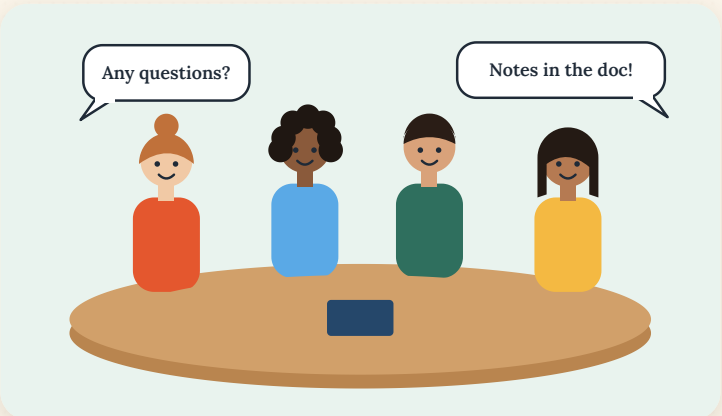

M

Meet Meera FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

kept a running 1:1 doc. Every week she added three bullets as things happened. Her manager started reading it before each meeting, and their 20 minutes turned into real coaching instead of status checks.

CLOSING MOVE

End every 1:1 by repeating your actions: "So I'll do A by Wednesday and B next week. Anything else?"

DAYS 31-60

Teamwork: Be Easy to Work With

Talent is common. Being easy to work with is rare. Your teammates will remember how you made their day easier, or harder.

Everyday teamwork

- [ ] Share information freely: links, tips, shortcuts
- [ ] Give credit by name: "Priya's idea made this possible"
- [ ] Ask "What can I take off your plate?" when you finish early
- [ ] Listen first in disagreements; summarise before you respond
- [ ] Keep promises to teammates, even the small ones
- [ ] Celebrate wins, and own your share of failures

✓ SAY THIS

"Good point, Arjun. I hadn't thought of that."

"I finished my part. Can I help with the testing?"

× NOT THIS

"That was my idea." (about a shared one)

"That's not in my job description."

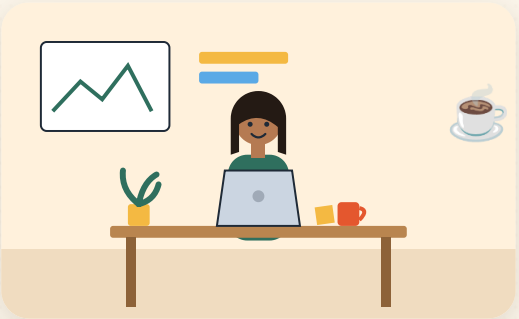

Your reputation is the sum of 1,000 tiny interactions.

DAYS 31-60

Remote and Hybrid Etiquette

Many teams work partly or fully remote. The rule: make your work visible and your availability clear.

AREA	GOOD HABIT
Availability	Keep your calendar and chat status honest. Say when you're away.
Video calls	Camera on if the team does; good light, tidy background, mute when not speaking.
Messages	Write complete messages; avoid "hi" and waiting for a reply. Put the question in the first message.
Response time	Acknowledge messages within a few hours; "Seen, will reply by 4 pm" is enough.
Time zones	Share time with zone: "3 pm IST". Respect others' hours.
Visibility	Share progress in channels; do not disappear for days.

HOME-OFFICE BASICS

- A fixed workspace, even a small one; stable internet and a backup (mobile hotspot)
- Headphones with a decent microphone
- Start and stop at clear times to protect your evenings

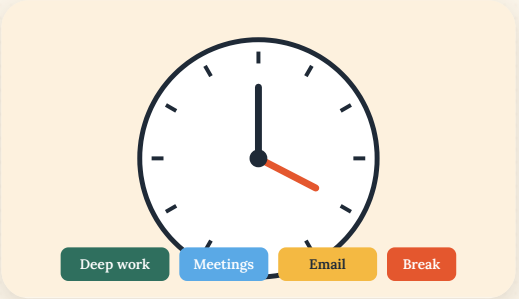

WATCH OUT

Do not multitask in meetings or leave calls half-way without a word. People notice, even on a small screen.

DAYS 35-60

Focus: Doing Deep Work

Constant pings make you feel busy but slow your real work. Learn to protect focused time.

A distraction-proof routine

1. Pick one task for the next 50 minutes.
2. Silence notifications and close extra tabs.
3. Set a timer. Work in 25-50 minute blocks.
4. Take a 5-10 minute break: stand, stretch, water.
5. Log what you finished before switching.

DO	AVOID
Check chat at set times	Reacting to every ping instantly
Tell teammates: "Heads-down till 11, urgent only"	Disappearing without a word
Keep your phone out of reach	Keeping it face-up next to your keyboard
Do the hardest task first	Starting with easy email to feel busy

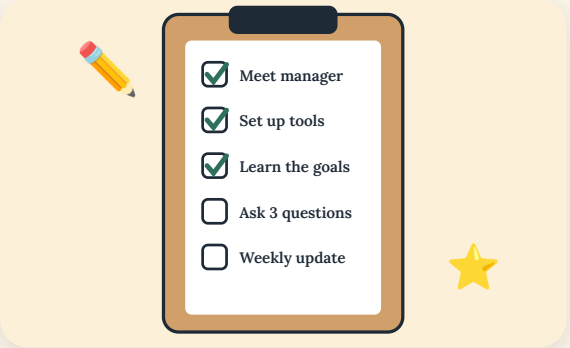

PARKING TRICK

Write the next small step before you stop. When you return, you start in seconds instead of minutes.

DAYS 35-60

Quality: The "Before I Say Done" Checklist

Quality is a habit, not a talent. A 60-second check before you submit saves hours of rework and protects your reputation.

BEFORE YOU HIT SEND OR SUBMIT

- [ ] Did I do exactly what was asked? Re-read the request.
- [ ] Did I test or proofread from the user's point of view?
- [ ] Are numbers, names, dates and links correct?
- [ ] Is it formatted clearly and consistently?
- [ ] Did I add notes so someone else can understand it?
- [ ] Did I save it in the right place with a sensible name?

DOCUMENT / CODE	QUICK QUALITY TIP
Email or report	Read it aloud once; fix awkward sentences
Spreadsheet	Check totals by hand for two rows
Code or script	Run it on a clean example; remove debug lines
Presentation	One idea per slide; check the order

REMEMBER THIS

Ask yourself: "If my manager forwarded this to the CEO, would I be comfortable?"

DAYS 35-60

Handling Pressure and Deadlines

Pressure is part of work. The goal is not to avoid it, but to stay clear-headed and communicate.

WHEN THIS HAPPENS	DO THIS
Too many tasks	List them; ask your manager "Which should I do first?"
A deadline is at risk	Tell early; offer options: reduce scope, extend date, get help
You feel overwhelmed	Stop; write everything down; pick the next 3 actions
Last-minute urgent request	Confirm what 'urgent' means: what, by when, who for
You made a mistake under stress	Pause, own it, fix it, learn from it

Calm-down toolkit

- Breathe: four seconds in, six seconds out, five times.
- Walk: five minutes outside resets your thinking.
- Talk: to a teammate or mentor, not just social media.
- Sleep: a tired brain makes careless errors.

Say: "Here's what I can do by when." That sentence solves most pressure.

DAYS 35-60

Dealing With Difficult People

Every workplace has someone who is blunt, moody, or hard to please. You cannot change them. You can change how you respond.

TYPE	WHAT WORKS
The micromanager	Over-communicate. Send updates before they ask; trust grows, control shrinks.
The unclear one	Write down the request and confirm it: "Just to align, you need X by Y."
The harsh critic	Ask for specifics: "Which part could be better?"; focus on the work.
The credit-taker	Share updates openly and name contributors; keep records of your work.
The gossiper	Stay neutral: "I wouldn't know. Let's ask them directly."

WHEN IT CROSSES THE LINE

Rudeness is annoying, but harassment, discrimination or bullying is not acceptable. Keep dated notes, speak to your manager or HR, and use the company's formal channel. You are not being dramatic, you are protecting yourself.

REMEMBER THIS

Respond to behaviour with calm, clear words: "When X happens, I find it hard to do Y. Could we try Z?"

DAYS 40-60

Build Relationships (Networking Without Awkwardness)

Networking is just making friends who happen to work in your company. Genuine relationships help you learn, get support, and hear about opportunities.

Easy ways to build connections

1. Coffee or tea chats: one a week with someone new, 15 minutes.
2. Say thank you with details: "Your tip about the report saved me an hour."
3. Help first: share something useful before you ask for anything.
4. Join a group: a sports team, a learning club, a volunteering group.
5. Keep in touch: a short message when someone changes role or achieves something.

✓ SAY THIS

"What is a project you are proud of?"

"Could I ask your advice on learning ___?"

× NOT THIS

"Can you help me get promoted?"

(only talks to you when they need something)

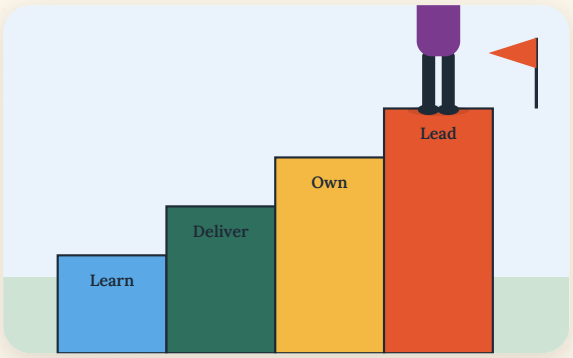

THE 3-3-3 CIRCLE

Make a simple list: 3 people you learn from, 3 peers you support, and 3 people you can ask for advice. Review it every month.

DAY 60

Your 60-Day Checkpoint

Halfway through. Pause and look at how you are showing up, not just what you have done.

RATE YOURSELF HONESTLY (1 = RARELY, 5 = ALWAYS)

HABIT	1	2	3	4	5
I meet the deadlines I commit to
I update people before they ask
I ask good, specific questions
I act on feedback quickly
I help teammates without being asked
I check my work before sending

MY BIGGEST STRENGTH SO FAR

THE ONE HABIT I'LL IMPROVE IN THE NEXT 30 DAYS

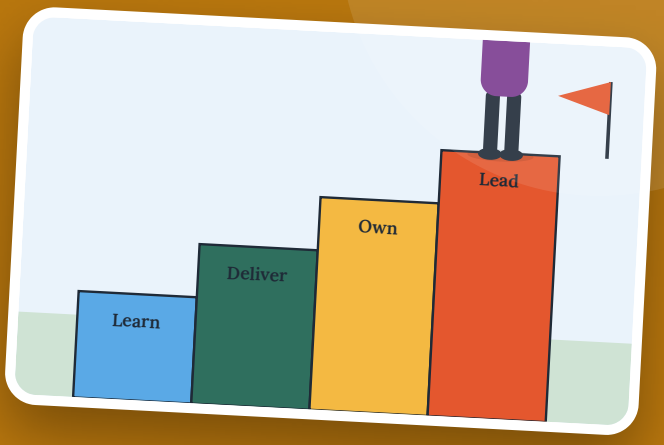

DAY-60 CONVERSATION

Ask your manager: "If you could change one thing about my work, what would it be?" Then thank them and do it.

PART FOUR

Days 61-90: Stand Out

Step up, share your wins, and shape your next chapter.

Now you are no longer new. People expect you to work independently, so show initiative, share what you are learning, and plan where you want to grow.

41-42	Be visible without bragging; your achievements log
43-44	Initiative and mentors
45-47	Learning plan, presenting, asking for feedback
48-49	Probation, confirmation and growth talks
50-51	Balance and your 90-day review

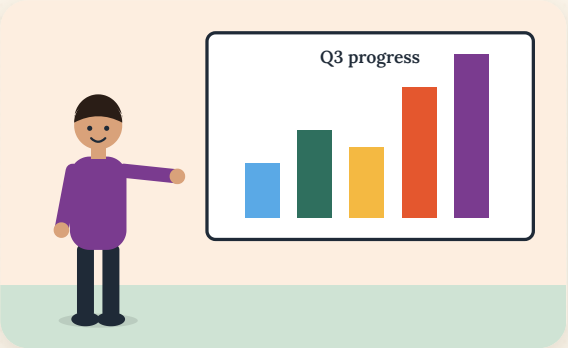

Goal for month three: be the person they would hand a bigger task to.

> Initiative is doing the useful thing nobody asked for, after asking if it is welcome.
> PART 4 IN ONE LINE

DAYS 61-75

Be Visible Without Bragging

Good work does not automatically get noticed. Visibility is not bragging; it is making your impact easy to see.

BRAGGING	VISIBILITY
"I'm the best on the team."	"The new report cut manual work from two hours to twenty minutes."
Talking about yourself constantly	Sharing results and what the team learned
Taking credit for team effort	Naming who helped, and your own part clearly

Five ways to be seen

1. Send a Friday summary of what you finished.
2. Share a short learning in the team channel or meeting.
3. Document what you build, so others use it.
4. Say your part in group work: "I handled the data cleaning."
5. Ask your manager to mention your work in the right forums.

✓ SAY THIS

"Here's a short summary of what I delivered this month and the impact."

× NOT THIS

"Nobody ever notices what I do." (and stays silent)

Let your results speak, then help them speak clearly.

DAYS 61-90

Keep a "Wins" Log

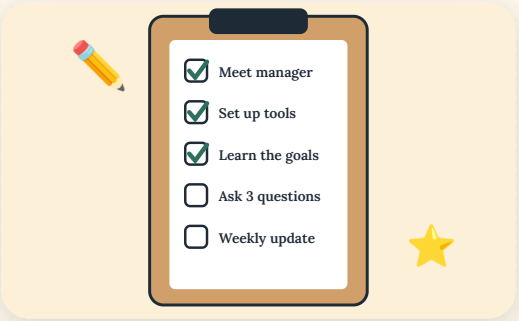

When review time comes, memory is a poor witness. Keep a wins log (sometimes called a brag document) from week one.

Wins log, example entry

Date: 18 Nov
What I did: Built a monthly sales summary in Excel using last month's data.
Impact: Saved the team about 2 hours each month.
Who noticed: Neha (team lead) thanked me in the channel.
Skills used: Excel formulas, pivot tables, clear communication.

What to record

- Projects finished and their results (time saved, errors reduced, people helped)
- Compliments from teammates, customers or other teams (copy the message!)
- New skills or tools you learned
- Problems you solved or mistakes you fixed well

THE FRIDAY HABIT

Spend 5 minutes every Friday adding to the log. Before your review you will have a complete story instead of a blank page.

R

Meet Rohan FICTIONAL EXAMPLE

kept a one-page log. In his review he showed six concrete results with dates and numbers. His manager said: "I had forgotten half of this. Thank you for reminding me."

DAYS 61-90

Take Initiative (Safely)

Initiative means spotting something useful and acting on it, without waiting for a task. In month three you are ready to do this.

Where to find ideas

- Repeating manual work that could be automated or documented
- Questions new joiners keep asking
- Small errors that keep happening
- Something customers or colleagues complain about

The safe initiative steps

1. Notice a real problem and check it is real.
2. Propose a small fix: "Would it help if I tried X? It would take about 2 hours."
3. Get a yes from your manager first.
4. Do it and share the result.
5. Hand it over with notes so it outlives you.

WATCH OUT

Do not start big changes without permission, do not change shared systems unprompted, and do not neglect your main tasks to chase side projects.

✓ SAY THIS

"I noticed X is slow. May I try a fix this week?"

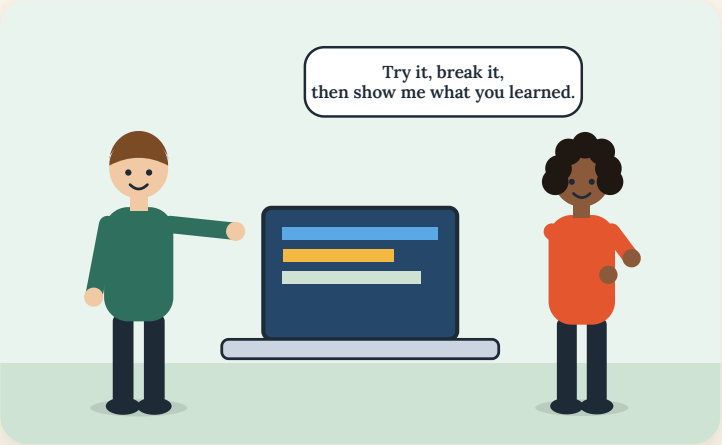

× NOT THIS

"I changed the whole process last night. Surprise!"

DAYS 61-90

Find Mentors and Role Models

A mentor is someone a few steps ahead who shares experience and advice. You can have several, and they do not need to be called mentors.

How to find one

1. List 3 people whose work or way of working you admire.
2. Ask for a 15-minute chat: "Could I ask how you grew in your first years?"
3. Come with 2-3 specific questions and take notes.
4. Follow up with a thank-you and what you tried.
5. Meet every month or two; keep it light.

Message to a potential mentor

Hi Ananya, I'm Meera from the analytics team. I really liked how you explained the pricing model in last week's meeting. Could I take 15 minutes of your time to ask how you built your skills in data analysis? I'd be happy to meet whenever works for you. Thank you!

MAKE IT MUTUAL

Mentoring is a two-way street. Share a useful article or tell them how their advice worked. People love hearing that they made a difference.

DAYS 61-90

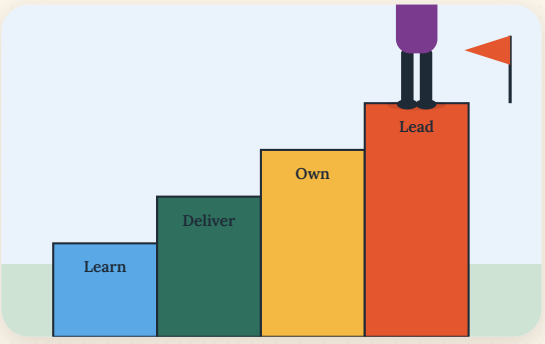

Build a Learning Plan

Companies notice people who keep improving. A small, steady learning habit beats a rushed burst.

AREA	EXAMPLE GOALS	HOW
Role skills	A tool or language you use daily	30 minutes each day; build a mini-project
Business knowledge	How the company earns, key products	Ask, read, shadow
Communication	Writing, presenting, listening	Practise in meetings; write short summaries
Career	Where you want to be in 2 years	Talk to people in that role

The 1-hour weekly learning block

1. Pick one skill for the month.
2. Block one hour each week on your calendar.
3. Use a mix: short course, reading, practising, teaching someone.
4. Apply it on a real task within two weeks.
5. Share what you learned: a 5-minute talk or a note.

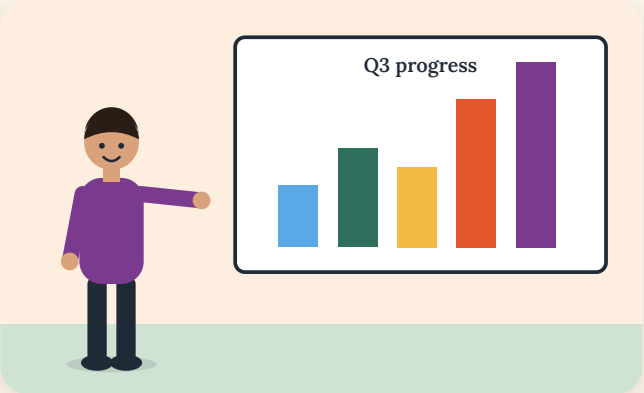

MY LEARNING GOAL THIS MONTH

DAYS 61-90

Presenting Your Work

Sooner or later you will present something: a demo, an update, a small project. A clear structure makes you sound confident even when you are nervous.

The 3-part structure

1. Why: the problem or goal in one sentence.
2. What: what you did or found: two or three key points.
3. Next: what happens next or what you need from the audience.

TIP	WHY IT WORKS
One idea per slide, big text, few words	People listen to you, not read the slide
Practise out loud twice	Smooths phrasing and timing
Start with the conclusion	Busy people get the point immediately
Pause after key points	Shows confidence; gives time to absorb
End with a clear ask	Turns a talk into action

REMEMBER

Nerves are normal. Slow down, breathe, and talk to one person at a time in the room.

DAYS 61-90

Ask for Feedback Proactively

Waiting for your review is too late. Ask for feedback regularly so that nothing in your review is a surprise.

ASK	SAMPLE QUESTION
Your manager	"What is one thing I should start, stop and continue?"
A teammate	"How was it to work with me on the last project?"
A senior colleague	"What would make my reports more useful?"
A stakeholder	"Did the output work for your needs? What would you change?"

Turn feedback into action

- [ ] Write down the top two themes you hear
- [ ] Pick one to work on this month
- [ ] Tell the person what you are trying
- [ ] Check back in two weeks: "Does it look better now?"

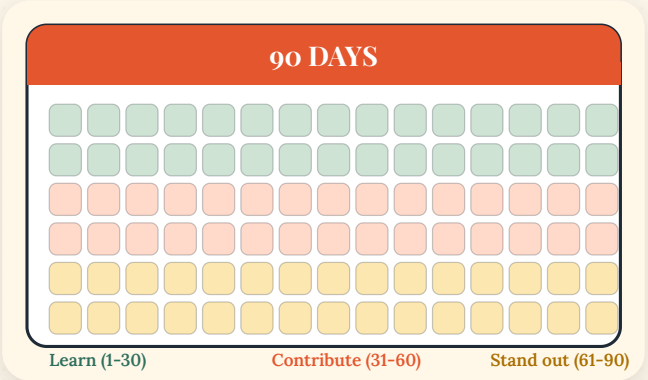

People who ask for feedback are remembered as coachable.

DAYS 75-90

Probation and Confirmation: What to Expect

Many companies have a probation period (often a few months). At the end, you are confirmed, extended or, rarely, let go. Here is how to approach it calmly.

TYPICAL CHECK	WHAT IT LOOKS AT
Performance	Quality, deadlines, learning speed
Behaviour	Attitude, teamwork, reliability, honesty
Attendance	Punctuality and sensible leave use
Fit	Values, communication, willingness to improve

Prepare for the review

- [ ] Re-read your offer letter and company policy for exact terms
- [ ] Update your wins log with numbers
- [ ] Ask your manager early: "Is there anything I should improve before my confirmation review?"
- [ ] Prepare 2-3 goals for the next six months

WATCH OUT

Do not wait until the last week to ask where you stand. Ask at around day 45 and again at day 75.

REMEMBER THIS

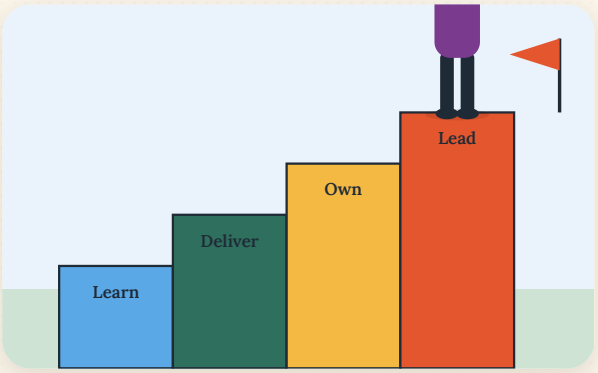

No surprises: if you have asked for feedback regularly, the review is just a summary of conversations you have already had.

DAYS 75-90

The Growth Conversation: Role, Learning, Pay

Eventually you will want to talk about growth: new responsibilities, learning support, or pay. Timing and preparation make these conversations productive.

TOPIC	HOW TO BRING IT UP
Bigger responsibility	"I'd like to take on more. Could I lead the next small project?"
Learning support	"Is there a course or certification that would help me in this role?"
Career path	"What skills do I need to grow towards ___ in the next two years?"
Pay	Wait for the right moment (review cycle or after a clear win), and prepare evidence.

A respectful structure

1. Start with thanks and what you've learned.
2. Show evidence: results from your wins log.
3. State your ask clearly and calmly.
4. Listen to the answer, and ask what would make it possible.
5. Agree next steps and a follow-up date.

> IF THE ANSWER IS NOT YET
> A "no" today often means "not yet". Ask: "What would I need to show to get a yes in six months?"

DAYS 61-90

Work-Life Balance and Avoiding Burnout

A strong start does not mean working until you collapse. Sustainable performance beats a short sprint.

Warning signs

- Constant tiredness, even after weekends
- Dreading work, or feeling numb about it
- Getting irritable with friends and family
- Skipping meals, sleep or exercise to "catch up"

Daily protections

- [ ] Eat a proper meal and drink water
- [ ] Take short breaks every 60-90 minutes
- [ ] Set a clear stop time and respect it (most days)
- [ ] Keep one evening a week for something you love
- [ ] Move your body; walk, stretch, play

PLEASE NOTE

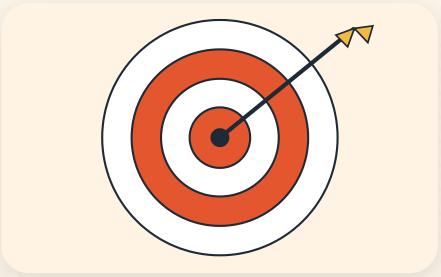

If stress is heavy for weeks, talk to someone you trust, or use your company's counselling or wellbeing services if available. Asking for support is strength.

Rest is part of the work.

DAY 90

Your 90-Day Review

At day 90, take an hour to reflect. Think like your manager: what did you deliver, how did you work, and where will you grow next?

LOOK BACK

QUESTION	MY ANSWER
What are my 3 biggest wins?
What did I learn that I did not know on Day 1?
What feedback did I get, and what did I do about it?
Which relationships did I build?
What would I do differently?

WHERE I WANT TO BE IN 6 MONTHS

THE STANDOUT MOVE

Share a short written summary with your manager before the review meeting: three wins, three lessons, and your goals for the next quarter. It shows maturity and makes the conversation productive.

PART FIVE

5 Your Toolkit

Scripts, templates and worksheets for real situations.

This part is meant to be used, not just read. Dip in whenever you need the right words, a template, or a quick reminder.

PAGE	TOOL
53	20 scripts: what to say in tricky moments
54	Three email and message templates
55	Your personal 30-60-90 plan
56	Daily and weekly review templates

TOOLKIT

20 Scripts for Tricky Moments

The right sentence, at the right time, can save a week of stress. Adapt the words to your voice.

SITUATION	SAY THIS
Introducing yourself	"Hi, I'm ___, I've just joined ___ as ___. Nice to meet you."
You didn't hear a name	"Sorry, could you say your name once more?"
You don't understand	"Could you walk me through that once more?"
Asking for context	"Could you tell me the goal behind this task?"
Checking a deadline	"Is Friday 5 pm okay, or is there a hard stop earlier?"
Too much work	"I have A, B and C. Which should I do first?"
You'll miss a date	"I want to flag early: this will take until Monday because ___."
Making a mistake	"I made an error in ___. Here's the fix and how I'll prevent it."
Saying no politely	"I'd love to help, but I'm on ___ till 4. Can I do it tomorrow?"
Disagreeing	"I see it a bit differently. Could I share one concern?"
Receiving feedback	"Thank you. I'll try that and show you the result."
Asking for a mentor chat	"Could I take 15 minutes to learn from your experience?"
Declining a request	"That's outside my scope; I'll connect you with ___."
Joining a conversation	"Mind if I join? I'd like to learn about this."
Offering help	"I've finished my part. Can I help with yours?"
Following up	"Just checking in on ___. Anything I can do to help move it?"
Asking for clarity	"To confirm, you'd like X by Y in format Z?"
Thanking someone	"Thanks. Your advice saved me hours."
Raising a concern	"I noticed ___. Could we look at it together?"
Ending a call	"Thanks everyone. I'll send notes and my action items."

TOOLKIT

Three Templates to Copy

Fill in the blanks and send. Good templates remove the fear of the blank page.

1. Thank-you after Day 1

Hi Mr. Kumar,

Thank you for the warm welcome today. I've noted the priorities you shared and I'm looking forward to getting started tomorrow. If there is anything I should read tonight, please let me know.

Regards,
Meera

2. Asking for a deadline extension

Hi Neha,

I want to flag early: the sales summary will take until Monday noon instead of Friday, because the data had gaps I need to fix. I can share a partial version on Friday evening if useful. Would you prefer that, or the full version on Monday?

Thanks,
Rohan

3. Asking for 15 minutes of advice

Hi Ananya,

I'm Karthik from the support team. I admire how you handled the migration project. Could I take 15 minutes of your time to learn how you approached it? I'm happy to work around your schedule.

Thank you,
Karthik

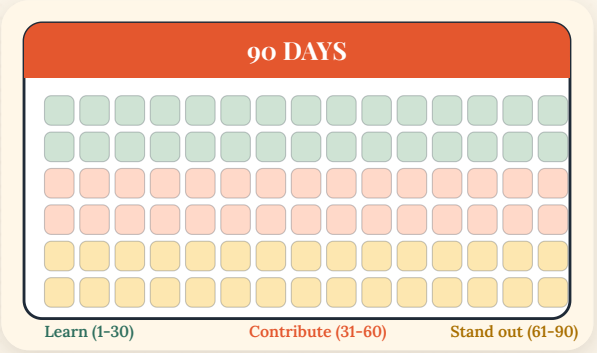

THE ANATOMY OF A GOOD ASK

Always include what you need, by when, and why. Short messages that state the ask get faster, kinder replies.

TOOLKIT

Your Personal 30-60-90 Plan

Fill this in with your manager in the first two weeks. It turns vague expectations into clear goals.

	DAYS 1-30: LEARN	DAYS 31-60: CONTRIBUTE	DAYS 61-90: STAND OUT
Goals
Skills to learn
People to meet
Results I will deliver
How I'll measure it
Support I need

NOTES FROM THE PLAN DISCUSSION WITH MY MANAGER

LIVING DOCUMENT

Update this plan every month. It becomes a record of your growth, and strong material for your review.

TOOLKIT

Daily and Weekly Review Templates

Five minutes a day and twenty minutes a week keep you in control.

DAILY: END OF DAY (5 MINUTES)

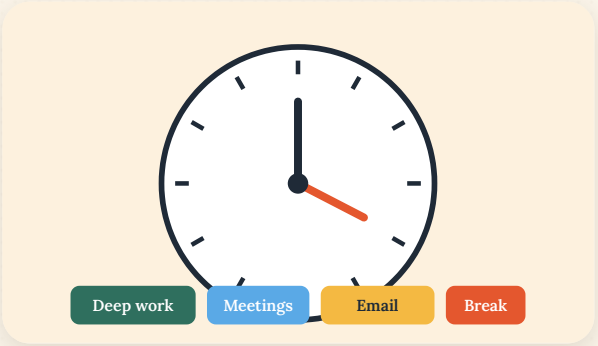

Daily check-out

1. What did I finish today?
2. What is unfinished, and what is the next step?
3. What did I learn?
4. Who do I need to update or thank?
5. Top 3 tasks for tomorrow:

WEEKLY: FRIDAY REVIEW (20 MINUTES)

Weekly review

Wins: 3 things I'm proud of
Challenges: what slowed me down?
Feedback received and my action
Learning: what new skill or fact?
Relationships: who did I help, who helped me?
Next week: top 3 priorities and 1 thing to improve

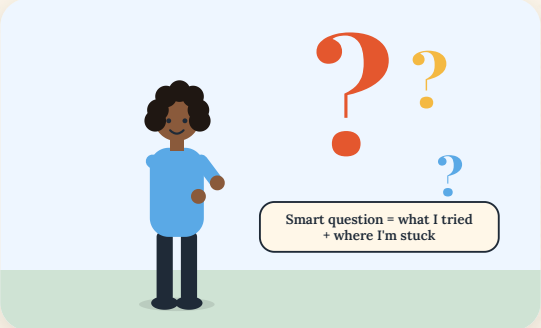

A tiny review habit beats a big plan you never use.

TOOLKIT

10 Common Mistakes (and Fixes)

Every new joiner makes some of these. Spot them early and you will be ahead.

MISTAKE	FIX
Staying silent when stuck	Ask after a short try; use the 3-part question
Saying yes to everything	Clarify priorities; say "I can do A by Tuesday, B by Friday"
Being late or disappearing	Reach early; tell people when you'll be away
Ignoring messages	Acknowledge within hours: "Seen, will reply by 4 pm"
Hiding mistakes	Tell early with a fix
Not taking notes	Keep a daily log and a knowledge notebook
Comparing yourself to seniors	Compare with your own last month
Gossip and office politics	Stay neutral and kind
Over-promising	Estimate with buffer; confirm before deadlines
Waiting for feedback	Ask regularly and act on it

REMEMBER THIS

Mistakes are normal. Repeating them without learning is what stalls careers.

TOOLKIT

10 Habits of Standout Newcomers

Not talent, not luck: habits. Pick one, practise for two weeks, then add the next.

1. Be early, not frantic. Calm arrivals create calm days.
2. Write things down. Notes make you reliable.
3. Ask smart questions. Context, tried, stuck.
4. Update without being asked. Done, Next, Need.
5. Deliver what you promise. Even small promises.
6. Say thank you specifically. It builds goodwill.
7. Learn something weekly. One hour, protected.
8. Help others. Be a good teammate.
9. Take feedback gracefully. Then apply it.
10. Take care of yourself. Sleep, food, movement.

Frequently Asked Questions

Short answers to questions most new joiners quietly wonder about.

WHAT IF I FEEL LIKE I DO NOT BELONG?

Almost everyone does in month one. Focus on learning and helping, and the feeling fades as you contribute.

WHAT IF I AM MUCH YOUNGER OR LESS EXPERIENCED THAN MY TEAMMATES?

Be respectful and curious. Most people enjoy teaching a keen learner, and they remember being new themselves.

HOW MUCH OVERTIME SHOULD I DO?

Occasional extra effort for real deadlines is normal. Constant late nights are a signal to discuss workload with your manager.

WHAT IF MY MANAGER IS TOO BUSY TO HELP?

Find a buddy or senior teammate, write clear questions, and book short, regular 1:1s.

SHOULD I TELL MY MANAGER IF I AM STRUGGLING?

Yes, early, with specifics and what you have tried. It is much better than being discovered later.

WHEN CAN I ASK FOR A RAISE OR A NEW ROLE?

After you have delivered visible results, at a natural review point, with evidence from your wins log.

WHAT IF THE JOB IS NOT WHAT I EXPECTED?

Give it a fair 90 days, talk honestly with your manager and a mentor, and note what you enjoy. Information about your fit is valuable either way.

Still stuck? Re-read the page for that situation, then ask a friendly senior.

THANK YOU

A Final Word

You started this book wondering how to impress people at work. You now know the answer: be curious, be reliable, be kind, and keep getting a little better each week.

One step at a time, one day at a time

> The first 90 days do not decide your career, but they decide how people see you. Make them count, and make them kind.
